Kinbrio

Complete Business Management Solution

Unify Projects and Organization management with communications, accounting, client and customer management, inventory and more to streamline business.

Your communications and data are exportable at a moments notice and using the matrix protocol to never lock your valuable internal chats into a vendor.

Encrypted and able to be self hosted so privacy and (if your industry requires it!) the ability to be your own data custodian are at the forefront of our design.

Communication

Communication is the most important aspect of your business from teams and clients down to interpersonal note taking. We take that seriously and believe communication has to be organized and efficient while also being a living breathing historical part of your organization.

For real time communication, voice, video and screen sharing we chose matrix a protocol that avoids tying you and your business to a single provider and offers different web and desktop clients for you to find the one you like best.

For email we use https://mailu.io/ to ensure your organization alerts, reports, updates and all related kinbrio information is transmitted to you, your team, suppliers and your customers without trackers and 3rd partys. This aids in our ability to enable you and your company the optional ability for on-site management of your email communication to run alongside kinbrio in a hardened environment.

Organization Management

Create and manage your organization, teams, communication channels and internal documentation. Branding and digital web presence can be easily deployed from the Kinbrio dashbaord.

Project Management

Creating projects, tasks and milestones for your business shouldn't be a full time job. Scheduling and status tracking is stream lined and directly integrated into your internal communications so everyone is always on the same page. Whether you need a simple distributed to-do list for your team or a more sophisticated scheduling system we have your project covered.

Accounting Management

Keeping track of simple invoices and sales is possible as well as integration with Akaunting to be able to use their platform for more involved accounting needs, or host your own Instance using their open and freely available software!

Client and Customer Management

Manage your clients entitys and contact infromation with documentation and notes with historical context instantly. Collect point of sale customer information and store it securely and able to be used in your future marketing campaigns as well as easily comply with PII laws and requests to remove sensitive personal identifying information by your customers. For ongoing clients that require secure and encrypted communication you can create dedicated matrix rooms for your company and a client to securely and privately communicate

Supplier Management

Tracking, meeting, scheduling and even interfacing with suppliers can be difficult to orchestrate so allowing your business to seamlessly schedule and report on suppliers across products, projects and more can help you optimize your cash flow as well as your brainload to make sure your products are delivered.

Inventory management

Manage cost, pricing, quantities, notes and documentation of products you sell and supply. Keep track of customers and trends with easy sales reporting. Integrate with popular POS applications and online storefronts to help bring you from data to up and running in a moment.

In the age of smart AI powered bots

As your organization grows and your communication history grows into years help avoid long and painful searches of historical chats with powerful AI to answer your organizational questions quickly as well as help you to the best of it's ability with answering small questions without you having to break focus and start from scratch opening up a search engine and start researching.

Creating Your Presence

Iterate on a new venture quickly by generating landing pages and product pages, store fronts, designs and more quickly - you style and brand your ideas and we bring them to life. We make sure you aren't left with a proof of concept, we offer services for SEO and content, fully features web applications and custom builds, digital advertising management and technical consulting to make sure your business is operating at full capacity as quickly as possible.